Houshou-in Kannondo

History of this transformation

Houshou-in Kannondo

This project is a renovation of an existing building. The original building was a traditional Japanese house, but it had been abandoned for many years. The architect's goal was to restore the building's original character while incorporating modern amenities and materials. The most striking feature of the renovation is the new wooden slat facade, which is a reinterpretation of the traditional Japanese sliding door (shoji). The slats are made of light-colored wood and are arranged in a way that allows natural light to filter through, creating a warm and inviting atmosphere. The interior of the building has been completely reworked, with a focus on clean lines and natural materials. The new design includes a large open-plan living area, a kitchen, and a bedroom. The overall result is a modern living space that pays homage to its heritage.

LAEKHON NONBAI HOTEL

LAEKHON NONBAI HOTEL
BANGKOK & THONGSAI, THAILAND

Client	Laekhon Nonbai Hotel
Location	Bangkok & Thong Sai, Thailand
Year	2018
Area	10,000 sqm
Program	Hotel

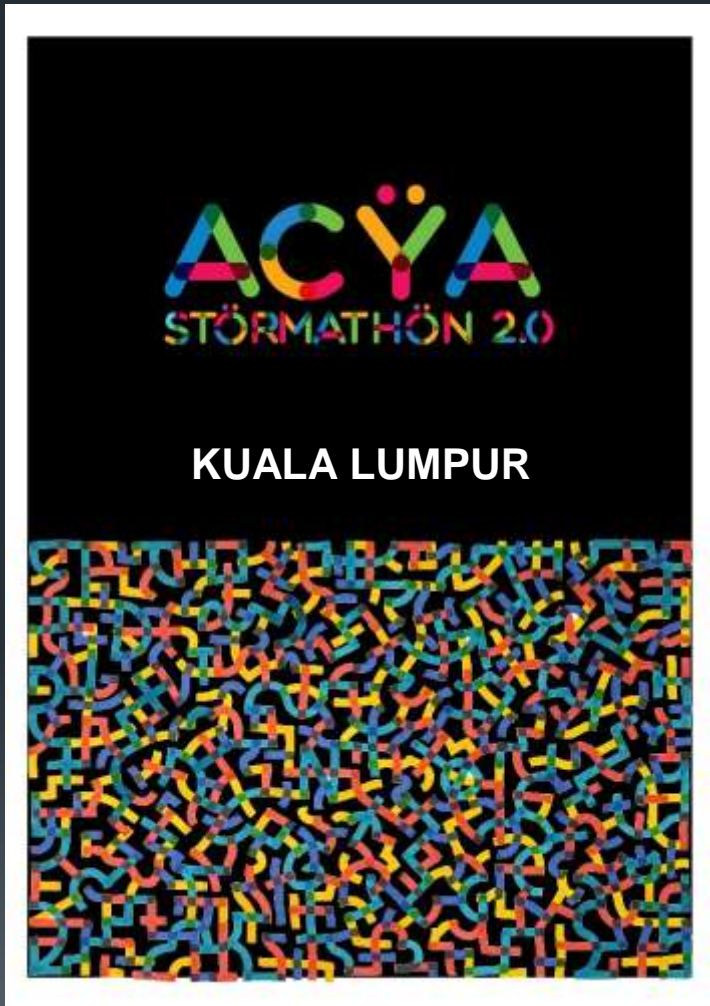

Project Description

The Laekhon Nonbai Hotel is a modern hotel located in Bangkok, Thailand. The building features a prominent facade with a grid of windows and a large, curved wooden roof structure. The hotel is designed to provide a comfortable and luxurious stay for its guests. The project was completed in 2018 and has since become a popular destination for travelers.

Architectural Details

The hotel's design is characterized by its clean lines and use of natural materials. The curved wooden roof is a key feature, providing shade and a sense of warmth. The grid of windows allows for ample natural light and offers guests a view of the surrounding city. The hotel's interior is also designed with a focus on comfort and luxury, featuring high-quality materials and modern amenities.
