

ARCASIA Thesis of the Year (TOY)

1. Overview

- 1.1 The ARCASIA Thesis of the Year is a prestigious architectural thesis competition that celebrates the innovative and socially relevant work of architecture students across Asia. Initially conducted by the Association of Siamese Architects (ASA), the competition was later adopted by the Architects Regional Council Asia (ARCASIA), an assembly of 22 member countries in the year 2015.
- 1.2 The competition aims to provide a platform for the brightest minds in architecture to showcase their fresh ideas and potential on an international stage. It focuses on theses that address critical social issues, display innovation and originality, and consider global needs and challenges.
- 1.3 Each year, architectural students from ARCASIA member countries are invited to submit their work. The theses are first evaluated at the national level by their respective institutes. The top entries from each country are then submitted to the ARCASIA Committee on Architecture Education for final judging.
- 1.4 The competition culminates in an awards ceremony held during the ARCASIA Congress or ARCASIA Forum, where the winners are announced. In essence, the ARCASIA Thesis of the Year competition is not just a contest, but a celebration of the talent, creativity, and commitment of the next generation of architects in Asia.
- 1.5 The ARCASIA Thesis of the Year (TOY ARCASIA) aims to establish a competitive platform for architecture schools from ARCASIA member countries. The following are its specific objectives:
 - 1.5.1 To Recognize Excellence: The primary objective of the ARCASIA Thesis of the Year is to recognize and reward excellence in architectural thesis work produced by undergraduate students from ARCASIA member countries. The competition aims to highlight exceptional talent and innovative ideas within the field of architecture.
 - 1.5.2 To Encourage Innovation and Originality: The competition seeks to foster a spirit of innovation and originality among architecture students. By encouraging students to push boundaries, think outside the box, and explore new approaches to architectural challenges, the competition aims to inspire the next generation of architects to create groundbreaking and impactful designs.
 - 1.5.3 To Promote Social Relevance: The ARCASIA Thesis of the Year emphasizes the importance of addressing pertinent social issues and needs through architectural design. By focusing on the social relevance of the theses, the competition aims to promote architecture that contributes to the betterment of communities, improves living conditions, and addresses societal challenges.

1.5.4 To Foster Global Perspective: The competition encourages architectural theses that consider global needs and challenges. By promoting a world orientation in the theses, the competition aims to instill a sense of responsibility and awareness among students regarding the broader impact of their designs. This includes considerations such as sustainability, inclusivity, and the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals.
